TEMPORARY CANCELLATION OF WAR DEBTS, NEW PROJECT

Harding Is Said To Have Advanced Idea

MORATORIUM, TOO

Signs Point To U. S. Participation In Next Conference

(China Press Service)

Washington, Sept. 3.—President Harding is said to have unofficially expressed himself today as being in favor of Germany's proposed moratorium, renewal of Russia's loan, and temporary cancellation of the European War Debt.

He is said to have stated that in his opinion "any immediate rehabilitation for world business depends upon it."

Commenting upon this alleged statement of the President, a spokesman of the White House is said to have declared that "If European statesmen reach the point where the help or advice of the United States will be needed that the United States would undoubtedly do everything possible to help untangle the European question. However, it was impossible to take any action at the present time, and there is considerable doubt as to whether the war debt could be cancelled on account of the fact that American business men demand and are entitled to some consideration and assurance before being asked to assume any such burden."

No official statement has as yet been given to the Press.

Mr. Leopold Jacob Dead

Prominent Former Resident Passes Away Suddenly In Chicago

His many friends in Shanghai learned with deep regret yesterday of the death in Chicago on the day previous of Mr. Leopold Jacob, general manager of the China and Java Export Company and for many years a prominent member of the American community here.

Word of Mr. Jacob's death, which came suddenly, was received by cable yesterday by Mr. J. S. Dolan, who has been in charge of the company's offices here since Mr. Jacob went back to America to assume charge of the New York offices two years ago.

Mr. Jacob, who was 45 years old, had been associated with the China and Java Company for 20 years, 20 years of which time he spent in China. He was for ten years in various cities in Europe and retired from active participation in the Far Eastern end of the business two years ago.

Mr. Jacob was prominent in Masonic circles and will be remembered particularly also for his untiring efforts here during the various Liberty Loan, Red Cross and other American drives conducted during the war. Besides taking a leading part in the campaigns for funds he was one of the most liberal contributors to the various causes.

He was at one time treasurer of the American Chamber of Commerce, was a member of the American Association and one of the founders of the American Club. All three of these organisations yesterday cabled messages of sympathy to Mr. Jacob's sister, who survives him. Owing to the general manager's death the offices of the China and Java Company will be closed to business today and tomorrow.

POWER, HELD AS EMBEZZLER, TO BE EXTRADITED

Former Agent Of Sun Life At Peking Being Brought Back From Canada

Stephen Power, former district agent of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada at Peking, who sailed for America early in July and was arrested on his arrival at Victoria, British Columbia on July 12 is to be brought back to China to face charges of embezzlment.

Details in connection with the alleged offense have not been made public, but it is stated that shortly after Power's departure it was found that his accounts in the Peking office of the Sun Life Assurance Company showed an apparent shortage, the total of which is given as $2,645.

On this showing a warrant was issued and a cable was dispatched to intercept Power on his arrival at Victoria on the steamer President Madison of the Admiral Line which sailed from Shanghai on July 2 and arrived at Victoria July 12. According to reports received from the Canadian port a mild sensation among the passengers on the President Madison was caused when Power was taken into custody.

Following the arrest Power was given a hearing in the Victoria Police Court and was held in connection with the charges for which he is wanted in China. Detective Sgt. W. Robertson of the West Hongkew Police station was detailed to make the voyage to Canada and bring Power back to answer the charges against him. Sergeant Robertson sailed last week.

SGT. JAMES RUSH, ON POLICE FORCE 15 YEARS, IS DEAD

Succumbs At General Hospital After Illness Of Week From Heart Ailment

Sergt. James Rush of the Shanghai Police Department, who recently has been attached to Louza Station and who has been in the police service of the International Settlement since May of 1907 died at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Shanghai General Hospital after an illness of only a week.

Sergeant Rush, who was 43 years of age, was stricken suddenly with an ailment of the heart a little over a week ago. His illness which was not believed to be serious at first failed to respond to treatment and his condition grew worse until his death yesterday.

Sergeant Rush has long been one of the leading athletes and sportsmen of the police force. He was winner last year of the amateur championship of the Shanghai Junior Golf Club and he was one of Shanghai's premier tennis players besides being prominent as a lawn bowler.

Sergt. Rush was a native of Australia, coming to Shanghai from his home at Cooma, New South Wales.

Kiangsu Governor Acts To Avoid Controversy Over Soochow Creek Conservancy

Early Dredging Of Congested Waterway May Silence Agitation To Transfer Work To Whangpoo Conservancy Board

In response to the recent request of the local Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and the Chinese Ratepayers' Association, the Civil Governor of Kiangsu has consented to instruct the Soochow Creek Conservancy Board to dredge the creek East of Markham Road bridge in order to facilitate the transportation in the Settlement section of the waterway.

In a letter to the two local Chinese public organisations, it is understood that the Governor admitted the importance of the dredging work of the creek and agreed with them that the work should not be carried out by the Whangpoo Conservancy Board, which is favored by the Shanghai Municipal Council, the British Chamber of Commerce and other foreign organisations in Shanghai.

The Soochow Creek needs dredging very badly, the congestion has caused a great deal of hardship among shipping interests, ships often are held for one or two days at a time on account of the congestion, according to reports made by local shipping firms. There has been a good deal of agitation in the press recently to assign the work of relieving the congestion to the Whangpoo Conservancy Board, which in 1919 made a detailed plan for the conservancy of the creek which was submitted to and approved by the Council.

The Shanghai Municipal Council and certain foreign public bodies feel that the Whangpoo Conservancy is the only competent body capable of carrying out the work to the satisfaction of all concerned and are ready to support and finance the scheme. The leading Chinese public bodies of this city were sounded as to their views.

The replies secured from the Chinese organisations were decidedly discouraging. They were firm in their contention that the act of transferring the work from the Soochow Creek Conservancy to the Whangpoo Conservancy Board would mean an infringement upon the sovereign rights of China, because, by treaty stipulations, China exercises absolute sovereignty over the waterway which drains the foreign settlement of Shanghai.

But aside from the big issue raised, the question of sovereign rights, Chinese contend that the only competent body to dredge the creek is the Soochow Creek Conservancy Board, which was specially created for the purpose of looking after the Soochow Creek just as the Whangpoo Conservancy Board was created for similar work in the Whangpoo River.

The Whangpoo Conservancy Board, which is essentially a Chinese Government bureau, has, according to the Chinese, gone so much out of the control of the Chinese that they do not want the mistake to be repeated. Elements at Peking today are trying to terminate the contract or treaty obligations with that board; and the Chinese would be glad to see it go out of existence. In fact, it is said that the present mission of Mr. Hsu Yuan, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, to Peking is to devise means whereby the board may be abolished.

Certain foreign interests here contend that the Whangpoo Conservancy Board has the right to work the Soochow Creek by virtue of the terms of the agreement signed on April 4, 1912. But the Chinese fail to find any such stipulation and maintain that if the board had the rights they would not have hesitated to exercise them.

On the other hand, the concensus of Chinese opinion here appears to be that the Whangpoo Conservancy Board has no right to dredge the Soochow Creek. The Chinese, expressing appreciation of the good work done with the Whangpoo River, hesitate to assign more work to the body.

Moreover, an existing bureau has been specially assigned to the work of relieving the congestion of the Soochow Creek. This bureau was created at the expense of Chinese farmers owning land on the foreshores of six cities watered by the creek. A surplus tax was raised by the provincial government some time ago to dredge the creek for farming interests and the work of dredging is being carried on now.

According to statements made by the chief of the bureau before the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, the work will be completed as far as the St. John's University by the end of this year, after which the bureau proposes to conserve the Settlement section of the Soochow Creek, although the interests at this section had contributed nothing towards the work. It is natural, says the bureau, that the work should be done first at the upper end of the creek, because the farming people there are paying for the dredging.

The bureau further contends that the garbage contractor of the Shanghai Municipal Council has caused certain sections of the creek to congest by dumping refuse into it. This contention however is denied by the Council which says that the contractor has purchased a large piece of ground for the sole purpose of dumping refuse carted away from the Settlement.

RECEIVE DETAILS OF TRAGIC STORM AT MOKANSHAN

Correspondents Tell Of Landslide Which Killed Rev. King

Communications received in Shanghai yesterday from Mokanshan, the first detailed accounts to arrive since the typhoon of last week, gave further particulars regarding the storm on the mountain, which was responsible for two deaths, and injuries to several among the foreign colony and caused a great deal of property damage.

(China Press Correspondence)

The heavy rains of last Thursday and Friday, probably the worst in thirty years, caused a number of landslides at Mokanshan, which resulted in serious damage to property and in the death of the Rev. Percy J. King of the Church Missionary Society.

The rain poured down all day Thursday, and before long the water was rushing down the mountain gullies in torrents. In many places considerable damage had already been done on Friday morning by the water and falling rocks, but in the middle of the afternoon, as if an earthquake had occurred, several bad landslides occurred simultaneously.

At that time three persons were at the public swimming pool, Mr. King of Shaohing and 13-year-old Robert Wilson being in the water, and Mrs. King standing on the bank near the Ladies' Bath House. Mr. King happened to notice that the land in front of the Methodist Ladies' Home, some fifty feet or more above the swimming pool, had given way and was sliding rapidly down to the pool. He called out to his wife, and she managed to escape being borne down into the water by the mass of dirt, mud and stones, although she had great difficulty in extricating herself from it all. The falling mass must have filled up the pool immediately and forced the water out over the bank and down into valley below; Mr. King was doubtless shot headlong over the side and then carried along in the rush of water down past the new Sanchiaopu road, some 200 feet away, where his dead body was recovered very soon after. His skull had been crushed in, and death must have been almost instantaneous.

The Wilson boy was thrown by the force of water up on the bank against the terraced stone seats; how he managed to get out of the mass of mud and the wreckage of the demolished Ladies' Bath House no one knows. His head was badly cut, and one of the ribs probably was broken, and he was otherwise bruised. Mrs. King suffered one gash on the foot, but succeeded in crawling through the mass about her, finally reaching her home after having cried out to passers-by to come to the rescue of her husband and the lad in the pool.

The damage to Mokanshan property from rain, landslides and wind will amount to thousands of dollars. The swimming pool, tennis courts and roads suffered most.

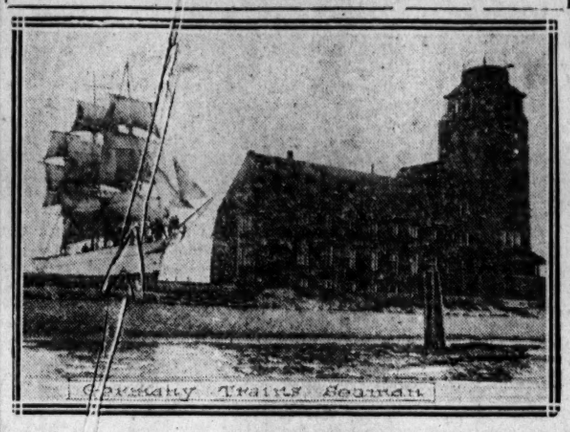
Germany Training For New Merchant Marine



THIS is a view of the German Merchant Marine Training Station, at Hamburg, where young men of the new Republic are being prepared for a career in the new mercantile fleet now being formed. A complete course of study, both practical and theoretical, is provided, and students who qualify are placed on active duty. The plan of operations is similar to the American plan of training, a unique feature being a full-rigged ship on land, to teach the technique of the sea.

Now Comes Open Season For Galloping Gossipers

By Elsie McCormick

The Season of the Great Heat has come and gone. Vacationing wives have gone and come. Mosquito nets and summer flirtations are riding away on the rim of the summer solstice; it is no longer de rigeur to dine in shirt sleeves, and one occasionally wears clothes when sitting by the window. Each boat that noses past the Little Orphan in the Yangtze, each coasting steamer from Tsingtau or Chefoo that lights thoughtfully on a mudflat before edging up to the jetty, and every train that flies through the dusty brown purgatory of Shantung and Chihli on the long trek back from Peitaiho are bearing a cargo of wandering wives, wrecked organdies, and ruined reputation.

Though the Season of the Great Heat is past, the Season of the Great Gossip is just at hand. A summer resort in China is a clearing-house for all the scandal of the year. There the most expert of the unpaid news gatherers from Hankow, Peking, Shanghai and way-stations wear their vocal chords to shredded shoestrings in the effort to bring the records to date. "Every woman her own newspaper" is the motto of the sisterhood.

RESORT CLASSICS

Furthermore, each resort furnishes a few news items of its own, such as the Tsingtau classic of the motor-car that overturned in the middle of a river and the return of the party at dawn in kimonos borrowed from a Japanese police-station. Then there is the other epic that does sturdy duty every year, each time with a different name attached, about the lady seen entering the hotel lobby carrying her shoes. We don't know why this should cause a scandal, most Chinese-made shoes being more comfortable worn in the hand than on the feet. But the story is always told with bated breath and much calesthenics of the eye-brows.

It is wonderful how news travels at summer resorts. Important local items usually reach the resorts twenty-four hours in advance of the newspapers. We used to suspect radios concealed under ear-puffs, but never managed to discover any.

The Season of the Great Gossip, now at hand, will be devoted to a comparison and compilation of the most important items heard at the summer resorts. It will be followed shortly by the Season of the Lesser Gossip, when the doings of the socially obscure will be taken up in proper order and disposed of according to parliamentary procedure.

BACK TO NORMALCY

With the departure of the heat and the arrival of the wives, Shanghai's return to normalcy will not be long delayed. For some time to come, however, the average Shanghai husband will feel a twinge of terror when somebody suggests that the party go over to one of the merrier cafes. He doesn't know just how to give high-signs in Russian and the thought of a recognising smile and a soft-voiced request to "please buy another bottle vine" causes his spinal column to turn temporarily to Jello.

The return to normalcy awakens no joy under the cotton jackets of Ah Loo, the houseboy, and Ah Ling, the cook. For two months Ah Ling has been feeding Master on whiskey sodas and peached eggs, meanwhile charging up everything edible from sliced bamboo to caviar. Something tells him that despite his best camouflage, Missie will discover from the compradore book that Master and the cat consumed thirteen pounds of butter in one week. Ah Goo, the coolie, who has been cheerfully sweeping the dust under the rug, takes up the dust-pan again and wonders what Missie will say when she discovers that the recent regrettable demise of her best platter a demise which occurred when his brother, a ricsha coolie by profession, substituted for him during a heavy session of mah-jongg.

Monkey jackets are climbing the trees again, taipans are beginning to expect their employes to work; babies are reappearing in the French Park; necks and shoulders of a color that might have grown on Pocahontas are noticeable at the Carlton; an epidemic of colds is announcing the fact that cheese-cloth lingerie has ceased to be adequate; and it is no longer fashionable to sit on one's veranda in pajamas. Fall hats are appearing in the shops and the gentle footprints of the dusty-winged moth are the cause of much language amidst clothes-presses and wardrobe trunks.

Shanghai is back to normalcy, which is as near as Shanghai ever gets to normal.

MINE BLAST IN BRITAIN BREAKS LONG IMMUNITY

Twenty-Four Bodies Recovered, Rescuers Work Hard

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 6.—The Whitehaven explosion breaks the country's long spell of immunity from coalmining disasters. Most distressing scenes were witnessed at the pithead as the mutilated bodies were brought to the surface. In one case, a father and two young sons were clasping hands. Hitherto, 24 bodies have been recovered, some so far from the scene of the disaster that it is practically impossible that the others have survived. Nevertheless the relief-workers are struggling most heroically in the face of the very difficult and dangerous conditions owing to the collapsing roofs and heavy gas. Relays of men are working all day and all night long. As one party retires, gassed, exhausted and baffled, another resumes the task. Some, badly gassed, returned to help after artificial respiration.

GREEK FORCES NEAR DEBACLE, APPEAL MADE FOR ARMISTICE

Disaster Complete, Is Report In London

TRUCE IS LIKELY

Powers Hope To Bring About End Of Fighting

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 5.—It is generally thought in well informed quarters in London that the disaster to the Greek Army is complete and there is little hope that anything now can prevent a thorough debacle.

The Greek Government has appealed to the Powers in order to secure an armistice and following communication between London, Paris and Rome the Allied High Commissioners at Constantinople have been instructed to discuss joint measures to assure suspension of hostilities.

MUSTAPHA Kemal Pasha, who for several years has had a varied and adventurous military and political career, is the leader of the Turkish Nationalists. It was he who commanded the combined Turkish and German armies which resisted the Allied attack at Gallipoli, which military success he is now repeating against the Greeks. A full account of this remarkable man's activities and influence appears on the editorial page of today's China Press.

It is hoped that arrangements will be made for representatives of the belligerents to meet within two or three days in a neutral zone South of Ismidt and that it will result in a speedy cessation of fighting.

Paris, Sept. 6.—The British Government has invited the French Government to examine the possibility of an Armistice between the Greeks and the Turks. It is expected that the French will reply tonight.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Mr. Roosevet, Acting Secretary of the Navy, has ordered Admiral Bristol at Constantinople to dispatch four destroyers to Smyrna to protect lives and property. Mr. Roosvelt adds that neither Naval nor political significance should be attached to this move.

Smyrna, Sept. 5.—According to advices from the front the Greek troops are refusing to make any stand. It is feared that unless the British and French act energetically serious events may occur at Smyrna.

British subjects will be embarked on board British steamers in the harbor where they will await events. The latest British Naval reinforcement there is the dreadnaught H. M. S. George V.

Paris, Sept. 5.—Ferid Bey, the Angora representative here, declared in an interview that the Turks did not foster dreams of expansion at the expense of their neighbors but that they would fight to the end for their independence.

Official Greek circles state that, although the situation is regarded as serious. Hope has in no way been abandoned. The Greeks are ready to sign a just peace but not a peace sacrificing the interests and lives of Greeks in Asia Minor.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 5.—The Greek Government announces that the First Greek Corps has rejoined the main body of the army in the positions organised behind Ushak.

While the Greek Government throws the responsibility for the defeat on the lack of discipline of the Army, the Liberals blame the Government and the higher command.

According to the London Evening Standard, M. Venizelos has been asked to return to Athens.

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 5.—If reports that the Turks have captured Ushak are true the Greeks have lost their last line of defence before Smyrna.

Red Beards Active Along C. E. Railway Traveler Reports

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, September 6.—An interesting story from Tsitsihar speaks on the disturbed conditions at present prevailing in the Chinese Eastern Railway zone and the dangers of travel there. An American, Mr. A. J. Park, Manager of the American-Oriental Game Company of Seattle, who left Shanghai for Tsitsihar in July and from there went west along the C. E. R. in search of live bustards for shipment to America, heard several stories of Hunghutze outrages in the course of his travels, while one band of 200 brigands raided a village within half a mile of the railway station at which he was lodging.

On August 11, Mr. Park set off across country hunting for bustards when, three miles from the railway, he met eight Chinese horsemen who frustrated his efforts to evade them and replied to his warning to keep off with revolver-fire. Mr. Park took shelter in a haystack which was the only available cover and killed three horses and defeated the brigands' attempt to surround him. After a hot fight the brigands showed a white cloth as their flag of truce and on Mr. Park's ceasing fire five of them made off. Mr. Park, who retired immediately to the railway, could not ascertain the fate of the three who remained, though the bodies of the horses were later discovered. Mr. Park reported that the Russian and Chinese inhabitants of the railway zone were completely terrorised by Hunghutze, against whom the present measures for protection are evidently inadequate.

Mr. F. B. Pitcairn Named President Of Engineering Society

Mr. F. B. Pitcairn was elected president of the Engineering Society of China at the annual general meeting of the organisation, held at the Shanghai Club Tuesday evening. Other officers elected were Mr. C. Luthy and Mr. E. C. Stocker, vice-presidents, and Messrs. A. W. Brankston, L. Tweedie Stodart, C. S. Taylor, E. T. Forestier, J. A. Ely, T. V. Wah, F. G. Helsby and S. S. Sellick, members of the council.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. O. Harpur, retiring president, and a review of the past year's activities was given and the report and accounts were passed.

It is announced that all communications with reference to the business of the society should be addressed to Mr. C. S. Taylor, S.M.C. Electricity Department.

Kappelites Move As Japanese Go

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, September 5.—Foreign telegrams from Vladivostok say that as the Japanese troops withdrew the Kappelites concentrated in a triangle between Spassk, Nikolsk and Pogranitchnaia.

It is reported that they intend to hold that region and if turned out to enter the C. E. R. zone, in which connection negotiations are proceeding with Mukden.

Receive Details Of Tragic Storm At Mokanshan

but considerable damage was done to the Railway Hotel, the Sanitarium of the Shanghai Municipal Council and the houses and land of Dr. Mei, Mr. McCloy, Dr. Goddard, Dr. White and others. The plain below the mountain was converted into several great lakes, and telegraph and mail communications were impossible for more than a day. Large numbers of householders and guests have been unable to leave the mountain and will be detained until normal traffic conditions have been resumed.

The Rev. P. J. King, whose death has saddened the entire Mokanshan community, was born in England forty-nine years ago. After a number of years in business positions in the homeland he volunteered for missionary service and was accepted by the Church Missionary Society. After taking the required preparatory course at Islington College, he came to China in 1904. He spent a very short time of service in Shanghai and Chun-ki, but practically all of his mission work has been done in Shaohing, Chekiang, where he has been headmaster of the C. M. S. Boarding School for Boys and has also engaged in evangelistic service. Two years after his arrival in China, he was married to Miss Alice Davis, a missionary of the same society, who, together with five children, three of whom are in England and two in China, are left to mourn his loss. Mr. King was known and loved by many foreigners and Chinese in this section of China, for his unusual gifts of sympathy and kindliness won him friends everywhere. His varied talents were unselfishly given in the service of His Master in the city and district of Shaohing; vacation-time, too, found him busy planning for the religious and social welfare of the foreign and Chinese community at Mokanshan. His funeral service was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Wallace at Mokanshan on Saturday afternoon, and the body was temporarily laid at rest in the foreign cemetery on the hillside there.

The following was received from a correspondent:

Mokanshan, Sept. 1.—Rev. P. J. King of Shaoshing, Che., was swept to his death by a landslide which filled the bathing pool on Mokanshan and destroyed the recently erected woman's bath house. It has been raining steadily for three days since the typhoon struck the mountain, causing the earth to slip from the hillsides in numerous places.

The largest landslide in the history of Mokanshan as a summer resort started this afternoon just below the home owned by the ladies of the Southern Methodist Mission. More than a thousand cubic yards of earth and stone rushed down the valley at the side of the pool, completely filling the pool with mud and debris.

Rev. and Mrs. King and Robert, eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Wilson of Changsuh, Ku., were the only persons in the swimming pool. Mr. King was thrown completely out of the pool and was found a hundred yards below with his skull fractured. Mrs. King and Robert Wilson were caught in the wreck of the bath house. The former suffered a severe cut on her foot, and Robert was pinned for some time under the wreckage. He made his escape before help arrived and went to the home occupied by the family of Mr. George Fitch. Here he was given first aid by Mrs. Peeler and when medical help was summoned he was found to have sustained several severe cuts on the head and a broken rib. While his injuries are serious it is fully expected that he will recover.

The funeral of Mr. King will be held tomorrow and the body will be temporarily interred in the Mokanshan Cemetery. Mr. King had been for a number of years a representative of the Church Missionary Society at Shaoshing, and was an old resident on Mokanshan.

A number of houses have been more or less injured by landslides including those belonging to Pres. F. J. White of Shanghai Baptist College, Dr. F. W. Goddard, Rev. A. F. Ufford, Rev. Lowry Davis, Mr. C. H. McCloy of Shanghai, and others.

Additional details were given in a letter written last Saturday night to Mr. George Fitch. The storm at that time had abated and it was possible to begin estimating the destruction wrought.

"Now, at 7 p.m. there is no rain," the letter stated, "but the Mokanshan community is viewing terrible ruins, and a tragedy of one sudden death and two accidents. Continuous deluges of rain for 36 hours so weakened the soil on the hillsides that there has been slide after slide and crashes of breaking house timbers that could be heard above the roar of the storm.

"The McCloy house got a bombardment from that big rock above that made a frightful hole and carried away the staircase and landed tons of dirt in the living room. They had to get ladders into the second story to get bed clothes. The Wilburs lost a wall and the path above their house is gone. Across from us on the opposite hill is a landslide that looks large from here. The tennis court is full of tons of soil and the library and church are unsafe.

"From the Methodist Mission house yesterday about 3:45 an enormous slide started. This house is located some distance above the pool. Trees, rocks, dirt in huge quantities came roaring down, gathering momentum and material on the way and, like a giant hand struck the top of the pool and scooped out the water, which went flying over the lower end and 'Niagaraed' over the bamboos and paths. It is said the ladies' bath house is either on the new road or halfway down toward the church.

"Five people had gone to bathe at that time. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace had finished and were on their way home. Mrs. King was just going in, Mr. King was in the pool and Robert Wilson, Jr., about 14 years old, was about to come out. The tidal wave carried Mr. King with it. He was found far down below among the debris, with a broken skull and severed artery. The water wave and gravel carried Mrs. King and Robbie Wilson under the matshed, which collapsed on them. Robert finally crawled out badly hurt from the waist up."

The injured lad made his way down the only remaining path to Mr. Fitch's house, where he was cared for by Mrs. Peeler and next day was able to be sent home, suffering from three large scalp wounds, a deep cut across the shoulder blade and a fractured rib.

Settlement Schools To Re-open Monday

Official notice is given in the current issue of the Municipal Gazette that public schools will reopen next Monday morning for the fall term. The notice sets forth that children of non residents, unless already in attendance, will not be admitted and the term, non resident, is taken to include those who have resided in Shanghai less than six months.

PARLIAMENT MEETS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, September 6.—There were some indications of rowdy meetings this afternoon when the House of Representatives met for the purpose of electing the Vice-Chairman but the House soon quieted down. Three hundred and ninty members were present. Mr. Chang Po-lieh was elected with 218 votes while Mr. Chu Fu-cheng obtained 168 votes.

HOW TO "GROW" ANEW COMPLEXION

These are the days of "hustling." In a week we see and do more than our grandmothers did in a year. We are gradually turning nature to be our servant; we use her great forces against herself. We have conquered sea and sky, now our doctors are fighting not only disease, but old age. There is talk of rejuvenating human beings by the injection of animal glands, but as yet, only the few can avail themselves of the treatment.

There is, however, one secret of perpetual youth that is in the reach of everyone. Scientists now realise that the only way of keeping the skin young and fresh is to examine Nature's methods and to find some way of imitating her.

SCIENTIFIC BEAUTY.

In order to explain the new method of keeping the complexion perpetually youthful, one must understand something of the nature of the skin. A baby's skin is always clear and smooth because the outer layer is always invisibly peeling off, and new layers are forming just as fast underneath, so that the exposed skin is always fresh, unwrinkled and "new."

For the first few years of our lives, this peeling is a purely natural process, but as we grow older, we gradually lose the power of throwing off our old soiled outer skins, so that our complexions become lined and yellow, and the new skin has no chance to show itself.

A few years ago, a scientific chemist realised that a little-known substance called mercolised wax, was exactly what was needed to "keep nature up to the mark." It appears that this substance, which is now universally obtainable, gently and painlessly assists nature in throwing off the soiled outer cuticle. The skin is thus perpetually renewed, and a clear youthful complexion can be preserved to any age. (Advt.)

Japanese Envoys Reach Changchun

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, September 5.—Mr. Matsudaira and Mr. Matsushima arrived at Chang-chun on Saturday. M. Yansen, the Chita Foreign Minister, who is representing the Far Eastern Republic also arrived on the same day.

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Sept. 3.—Mr. Matsudaira and party, four in all, who are Japanese delegates to the Japan-China conference, arrived here at 7:10 a.m. today, starting for Changchun at 9:40 a.m. Interviewed by a representative of the Eastern News Agency, Mr. Matsudaira, Chief of the Japanese delegation, made the following statement:

"The forthcoming Changchun conference has nothing to do with the withdrawal of the Japanese troops from Siberia. The reopening of the Russo-Japanese negotiations has been expected since the rupture of the Dairen conference. It is true that Japan has impressed Chita favorably by the withdrawal of the Japanese troops from Siberia. I feel therefore convinced that the various questions which could not be solved at the Dairen conference, will probably be settled. Though I have no freedom as yet to express my views as to the Changchun conference, it may be said that as the general order of the conference, fundamental arrangements will first be made and then detailed items, relating to the disposal of seized arms and to the fishery and navigation rights will be deliberated upon.

"I want to avoid a definite declaration concerning these matters until after an interview between the delegates of the two countries concerned. With regard to the Nikolaievsk incident, we have no intention to tender any proposal again, but if China should have any proposition to make in this connection, Japan will make a reply to it.

"In conclusion, with regard to the question as to whether or not Japan should recognise the Soviet Government, we, Japanese delegates, have a firm determination absolutely not to touch upon the question this time."

"My wife objects to life insurance."

"THAT is rather unusual. Women are the best friends of life insurance, because the protection and guarantee of their happiness and welfare that it affords prompts men to turn to life insurance. Your wife may object because of her unselfishness, but when she hears the whole story and sees that the insurance benefits you as well, probably she will not object.

"LOTS of women object to life insurance for the simple reason that they hate to face the situation of getting along by themselves. But is that any reason why you shouldn't face it?

"BECAUSE your wife is willing to risk leaving your family in distress, you are not justified in doing so."

GERMAN FINED FOR ASSAULTING RICSHA COOLIE

Carl Knabe Assessed $20 By Mixed Court

For beating a ricsha coolie on Kiangse Road Tuesday afternoon Carl Knabe, German electrical engineer living at 25 Tungchow Road, was fined $20 by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui in the Mixed Court yesterday.

The case for the prosecution was stated by Detective Sergeant Beer and evidence of the assault was given by Mr. Allen, Mrs. Lemon and Mr. Bourne. The coolie testified that he had pulled the defendant from Nanking Road to the steamer Tungchow, lying off the French Bund, thence back to Nanking Road and afterward to Kiangse Road. He had been engaged for about two hours, he declared, and the defendant had offered him five coppers. When he refused to accept them and protested defendant beat him.

The defendant denied the coolie's story, stating that he went to the steamer and returned to Nanking Road with several friends. On their return one of the others paid off all the ricshas. Afterward he took the complainant's ricsha to a garage on Kiangse Road. He did not know if it was the same coolie who pulled him from the ship. He gave the man a number of coppers and, when he protested, gave him several more. The coolie threw them on the ground, caught hold of his sleeve and dragged at him. Defendant admitted that he lost his temper and struck the coolie five or six times. He denied kicking the man.

In giving judgment the court stated that it could not entirely believe the coolie's story, but in cases such as this the assaulting of coolies was not excusable. Accused was required to pay a fine of $20, $3 to go to the coolie, who had had to go to hospital.

COMPRADORE JOB FLIVVER, CHINESE GETS $300 BACK

Judge Grain Finds For Plaintiff In Recovery Suit

A Chinese who had deposited $300 as security when he accepted a position as compradore for the firm of Marriott, Belitzky and Co. (China) Ltd., was given a judgment for that amount by Judge Peter Grain in the British Supreme Court yesterday when his attorney, Cornell Franklin proved to the satisfaction of the court that the position that had been promised to his client did not materialise.

The affairs of the defendant company, it appeared, were somewhat involved, and were in course of liquidation, and principals for the company contended that the Chinese should take his turn with other creditors when the affairs of the concern finally were wound up. Mr. Franklin, however, argued that his client's position differed from that of other creditors, in that the money he sought to recover had been put us as security, and was not for that reason an ordinary debt.

The Chinese, Chang Geekang by name, testified that he had been engaged early in the spring, and that after depositing the $300 as security he was informed by letter that his duties would begin at a subsequent date, of which he would be duly informed. Despite several efforts on his part to find out when his job started he was not successful. He was put off, he said, by the statement of one of the company's officers that "Mr. Marriott had gone to Manila."

The defendent company was not represented by counsel, although at a previous hearing Mr K. E. Newman had appeared for the concern. At that hearing when Mr. Belitzky, of the firm, was asked by the court if he cared to deposit the sum in question until a hearing could be had he replied that the firm did not have that much money.

Mr. Belitzky cross examined the Chinese, but was unable to shake his testimony, and judgment was given for the plaintiff with costs, as soon as Mr Belitzky sat down.

VACCINATION BY SWALLOWING TO RULE IN FUTURE

Typhoid, Dysentery And Cholera Preventives Found

(Chung Mei Service)

Paris, Sept. 15.—The method of vaccination by puncturing is about to pass into the discard if the new method of Dr. Besreka is to be adopted whereby patients will swallow the vaccine.

The vaccines which can be swallowed according to Dr. Besreka are typhoid, dysentry and cholera vaccines.

It is pointed out that swallowing the vaccine is the more logical method since these diseases are contracted by the mouth often through food and that the vaccination should be more effective in absorbed through the same channels.

Experiments have been very successfully carried out with dysentry vaccine whereby it has been shown that the vaccination is more effective by swallowing than by injection.

Some difficulty was at first encountered in experiments with typhoid vaccine because typhoid germs absorbed through the intestines did not always impart the disease but by combining the ordinary vaccine with bile the vaccine has proved very effective.

Public Inspector of Hygiene Vaillant put the new method of swallowing vaccine to the test in the Depart of the Pas De Calais where there was an epidemic of typhoid. Of 1,236 inhabitants thus vaccinated only 5 contracted typhoid.

The new method prevents the danger always accompanying hypodermic injections where infection may be contrasted.

SHANGHAI TIES SERIES WITH PEKING BY 4 TO 2 WIN IN A SEE-SAW GAME

Zenman Outpitches Scott But Throws The Game Away In Wild Pitches

Shanghai tied their series with the Peking Marines yesterday afternoon after a see-saw six and a half inning game which ended, after the full moon had risen over the Eastern housetops, at a score of 4-2. Zenman deserved a better break, if one overlooks his own occasional wild heaving, and a piece or two of stupid work when the play got fast. He had the best of Scott in the matter of strikeouts and free passes, and general effectiveness.

Shanghai took the lead in the first inning on Holliday's double to right followed by two wild pitches. The visitors came back in the next frame tying the score. Scott walked Hiltibrandt and an infield out and a single over short by Zenman brought him in. Holliday fielded the ball nicely and threw hard to the plate but Scott cut the throw off. In the third the Marines added another run and took the lead in the game. Kelly doubled to right and scored on Olsen's clean drive through Thatch.

Shanghai again tied the score in the fourth, Kingman got on off a beautiful slow bunt between Zenman and Hiltibrandt. Hopkins was hit by a pitched ball, advancing Kingman, but ran into a fast double play Donovan to Knauff to Thomas off Smith's grounder to second. Kingman took third on the play, and came in on Hoag's nice line hit to right field.

In the fifth after one was out, Bills homered along the right field foul line, forcing Kelly into the water-filled ditch in search of the ball. Holliday beat a grounder that Thomas and Donovan were trying to handle by a hair's breadth after a fast slide into first against the two racing fielders. He took second on Wall's infield out, and scored with some fast running from second on Zenman's third wild pitch.

Peking got two men on in the fifth on Bill's boot and a single through third, but two men had already died and a flyout to Kingman removed the menace. Thomas reached third in the fifth on Thatch's fumble, a succeeding single and Wall's passed ball, but the two men died where they were on easy following outs. Donovan doubled in the sixth after two were down but Kelly was thrown out by Scott. The Marines never had another chance.

The third game of the series will be played tomorrow commencing at 4:30 o'clock, with the two concluding games on Saturday and Sunday commencing each day at 3 p.m. It is possible too that a double header will be staged on Sunday, though the management is not yet prepared to make a formal announcement.

LAWN BOWLS CLUB DEFEAT HONGKONG IN FINAL END BY SCORE OF 21 TO 20

Visitors' Valiant Play Overcomes 16-2 Lead After Interval

BY "THE SHOT"

The game yesterday at the S. L. B. C. green was well attended by members of the various clubs, who must certainly have appreciated both the game, and the arrangements made for their benefit, by the club's officials.

The game, curiously enough, started in the same manner as the match against the Recs and despite all their efforts the Hongkong team could not hold the club's contingent, the score mounting up gradually until near the interval, when the card read 16-2 in favor of the club. Up to this point Captain Gerrard had not quite got the touch of the green while Freddy Large was leading in quite his best form. As a matter of fact the whole of the Club's representatives were bowling in Interport form. A. D. Bell and Gavin Campbell made some particularly nice shots during the first half while Jimmy Robertson was in the picture every end.

The interval—and then what a change. Starting with a series of singles the visitors started to play as we know they are capable of doing and to make things interesting. Skip Wallace and his lads notched a perfect five when A. D. Bell had nothing to do but drive, at which he was unsuccessful. So the game went along until the card read 19th end and 19 all.

At the 20th end the Club scored two shots, and the teams went to the last end amidst great ex-

Blood Poisoning
Yet Another Grand Recovery

Our Portrait is of Mr. WILLIAM HARBORNE, of 6, Railway Road, Perry Bar, Birmingham, England, who writes:

"About two years ago I met with rather a bad accident. My arm was cut severely, and I had to have it stitched at the hospital. This caused me six weeks' absence from work, and after resuming my duties for one week I broke out all over my body with huge Boils. Again I went to the Hospital, and was treated for Blood Poisoning; this happened on three successive occasions, until I began to think I should never be cured. Then I gave Clarke's Blood Mixture a trial, and the first bottle or two seemed to be driving out the poison, so I persevered, and after taking ten bottles I was cured. It is now over twelve months since I left off taking your Clarke's Blood Mixture, and I have seen no signs of any further blood disorder."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Pleasant to take and free from anything injurious.

BELGIAN ENVOYS GO TO BERLIN TO TALK SECURITIES

Moratorium Depends On Outcome Of Negotiations

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 5.—The Belgian delegates have left for Berlin to discuss the question of the guarantees to be offered as security for the German Treasury bills, by which the instalments due on account of timber and coal deliveries until the end of 1922 may be paid.

M. Theunis, the Premier, has instructed them to accept, apart from a gold deposit, only guarantees permitting of actual payment.

On the successful issue of the negotiations depends whether the recent compromise decision of the Reparations Commission will mean the practical grant of a six months' moratorium to Germany.

This will give the Allies time again to grapple with the whole problem of reparations and inter-Allied debts with a view to a comprehensive settlement.

Failure of the negotiations will produce a financial crisis. Every confidence is felt that M. Theunis, whose statesmanlike attitude resulted in the compromise last Thursday, will do his utmost to prevent a disaster.

Sir John Bradbury, interviewed by Reuter's Paris correspondent, said that the guarantees to Belgium were the exclusive concern of the Belgian and German Governments but it would be unfortunate if any large percentage of the Reichsbank's gold reserve had to be provided as a guarantee.

Sir John Bradbury denied the assertion that British assistance towards the provision of guarantees was contemplated and expressed the opinion that, unless Germany's reparation liability were written down, it would be impossible to restore German credit, which would mean the collapse of the German financial structure and the abandonment of all hopes of reparation.

Miners Ratify New Peace Pact

(China Press Service)

Washington, Sept. 5.—The coal strike settlement agreement was warmly ratified by the Miners Scale Committee today.

The Administration is highly pleased with the strike termination, predicts more prosperous conditions generally throughout the country as a result of the resumption of work in anthractie mines, after a tieup of over five months.

The situation it is said will be a great aid to the speedy return of national prosperity.

St. Louis, Sept. 4.—Many thousands of miners in Southern Illinois face enfored idleness and probably want, as a result of there being no coal cars available to carry away the coal produced.

Three thousand are reported to be idle already. It is thought that this condition will spur officials to action in the railway strike.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—A statement given out to the Press today by the railway employes, declared that they were willing to obey the Government's injunction and endorse it in every way, and act accordingly.

Soviets Execute Kieff Unbelievers In Wholesale Lots

Riga, September 6.—The undiminished relentlessness of the Soviet administration is illustrated in a message from Moscow which states that a number of members of a "political Red Cross organisation," who had political prisoners in Russia under their care, have been arrested and charged with establishing a counter-revolutionary organisation.

A tribunal at Kieff trying Ukrainian rebels against bolshevik rule sentenced 88 to death and confiscated their property. It also sentenced 27 to imprisonment.

Timoveief, the Socialist Revolutionary leader, who was recently sentenced to death, committed suicide by hanging himself in his cell.

MISS EMMA SIZEMORE

It is with deep regret that we have to record the death of Miss Emma Sizemore, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sizemore of the Riverside Power Station which occurred Monday afternoon at the Victoria Nursing Home after a brief illness.

Miss Sizemore came up to Shanghai with her parents from the Philippines, where she was born, six years ago. After the family was settled she entered the Thomas Hanbury School for Girls and, at the time of her death, she was still a student in that institution. She was during her life time a very active member of the "Shanghai Girl Guides" and was a Secretary of the Union Sunday School. Miss Sizemore was just 17 years old at the time of her death.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at the Bubbling Well Cemetery in the presence of her parents, brothers, sisters and several friends.

Wreaths were sent by Mrs. Davey and Family, J. V. Alinsod, Mr. Simon Dasmarinas, Captain and Mrs. W. McC. Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harvey, Mrs. A. M. True and family, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Committee Will Test Power On U.S. Ships

(China Press Service)

Washington, Sept. 5.—The horsepower of engines on the various types of Shipping Board vessels is to be tested by special apparatus purchased by the Fuel Conservation Department. This was announced yesterday by Captain C. A. McAllister, vice-president of the American Bureau of Shipping and chairman of the special Shipping Board committee, as a step in the plans to reduce the $45,000,000 annual fuel bill. Captain McAllister said that accurate information on the power of many government ships was not available and must be obtained before adequate results could be obtained.

It was said yesterday that a survey of the government vessels now in operation shows that 85 percent are oil burners, and consequently not affected by the coal strike. The Shipping Board has a contract for its oil supplies to next January at $1.05 a barrel.

THE CORRUPTION OF THE MOVIES

Pet Peeves Editor, The China Press

Sir:—I have travelled in many of China's famous provinces where I have seen numerous places together with many relics. But I don't find a place the theaters of which are more splendid than those of Shanghai, more crowded with people old and young, flocking in those places for nothing but to enjoy the corrupted movies. These movies always show the love between man and woman. I think it is not necessary for movies to show such pictures, for men since the creation of the world have known the love between wife and husband. By haunting theaters, many a young man, who would otherwise become great, famous, and prosperous, neglects his office work or abandons his studies, but to devote his time in thinking of the pleasures of the flesh. What will be the outcome? He will probably commit adultery, and his life will become infamous. This is the first evil done by the movies.

In the second place, movies show frequently how thieves steal, the sleight of hand of pilferers, and plunderers with the aid of motor-cars, steamers and rifles. Such pictures can induce idlers to commit such acts when misfortune happens in their lives.

The above two actions are the greatest evils done by the movies. There are still many abuses of the movies, but since I am limited to so many words, I can name only two of them.

A STUDENT'S VIEW

Pet Peeves Editor, The China Press

Sir:—I wish to voice here a complaint about the bitter despise, I shall so word it if you please, which we, Chinese, are receiving from some of our Western friends, due, I hope, to ignorance, innocence or some excusable misunderstandings.

It was really unfortunate that the mood of our traditional civilisation was so different from that of the Occident that our people appeared very awkward, distasteful and despisable to the Westerners. But their valubale help has been greatly assimilating our weakness; and we—or those of us who have any contact with them at all—are now of a completely different sort from the old class people who made such a bad impression in the foreign minds ten or fifteen years ago. Although, sure enough, we do not mean to be so much Westernised as to act exactly like foreigners, yet it would be unjust to measure us with what our fathers used to be. And, therefore, for foreigners to refuse conceiving us as we now deserve, I would consider a bitter despise.

Foreign business men despise us. They kick the native laborers—br coolies—and ill-treat the other native employees, who, as citizens of the Chinese Republic, are just as noble as anything else. They won't trust any Chinese, for once being tricked by one, they would conclude that all were like that. Are there no wicked people in the Western world? Would you be satisfied with the statement that they justly represent the multitude? Of course not! And so we cannot bear such a despise.

Foreign educationists despise us. They, in general, have been treating us just like slaves, and forgetting that the noble personality of the Chinese student today does not allow any more autocratic insult. In the few co-educational colleges in China, the students of the two sexes are kept so strictly apart that they almost seem like prisoners. Are all Chinese students bad and immoral? Are Americans and Britishers the only ones who can keep up their personality? If so, better abolish the co-educational system.

There are many other instances that can be cited to show this bitter despise, but space does not allow of it. But I primarily aim to call the attention of our innocent Western friends of their utter misconception, although possibly I have employed expressions stronger than meant.

Hoping to be responded with reasonable consideration, and longing for a deeper international sympathy and a fuller expression of gratitude on the part of our fellow country-people, I remain Yours for a brighter world of mutual understanding.

U.S. Relief Head Says Conditions In Russia Are Better

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 5.—A much brighter outlook in the famine regions in Russia is indicated by Mr. Flesh, President of the United States Grain Corporation and Comptroller of the American Relief Administration, who has just arrived here after a month's inspection.

He expresses the opinion that Russia will have enough food until next harvest if it is properly distributed. The crops look excellent despite some complaints of locusts. Staple foods are now obtainable at railway stations at exorbitant prices.

Mr. Flesh said that the railroads had enormously improved and that he saw 90 locomotives being hauled to Russia from Germany.

The Relief Administration was at one time feeding 10,500,000 people but the number was on the decrease.

Commercial Conference In Honolulu To Enable "Key Men" Of Pacific To Meet

Delegates Representing Two-Thirds Of World Population Will Plan For Future Inter-racial Co-operation From October 25 To November 8

Honolulu, T. H., August 20.—A remarkable gathering is scheduled to be held in the center of the Pacific Ocean this fall.

From October 25 to November 8 in Honolulu the "key men," in matters of commerce and finance, from the lands bordering the greatest of waters are to meet each other daily to formulate plans for future inter-racial cooperation in bringing about the development of those interests common to all the peoples of the Pacific area.

These men representing government departments or commercial bodies are being carefully selected from each country. They will be guests of the Pan Pacific Union. These delegates will represent the two-thirds of the world's population which is tributary to the shores of the Pacific Ocean. They realise that the Pacific is to be the future theater of the world's commerce. They know that the traditions of peace that have always prevailed in the Pacific can best be maintained by the leaders of men in all lines of thought and action in Pacific lands meeting together and establishing among themselves a foundation of mutual confidence on which will be built cooperative effort.

HARDING'S MESSAGE

Following the precedent established at the other conferences of Pan-Pacific scientists, educators and press men, called by the Pan-Pacific Union, it is expected that President Harding will sound the key note of the Commercial Conference in his message, to be read by Governor Farrington of Hawaii at the opening of its sessions.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has already penned his message and is sending unofficial delegates as are the departments of Agriculture, Navy and Interior in the United States, as well as the Department of Trade and Commerce in Canada and the proper governmental departments in the other countries of the Pacific. Besides these delegates from governmental departments the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has appointed five delegates. It is understood that the president and secretary of the National Foreign Trade Commerce will attend with a proper delegation from that body; the presidents of the Pacific Coast city Chambers of Commerce propose attending with delegations composed of leading business men, while from Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan and other Pacific lands, financial organisations or boards of trade will send their leaders.

The Presidents and Premiers of Pacific lands are heads of the Pan-Pacific Union, which, although an unofficial body, is supported in part by appropriations from Pacific governments. The State Department has transmitted the invitation of the Union to the Pacific governments to send their delegates and it is expected at this conference in Honolulu that a firm foundation will be laid for future friendly commercial understanding in the Pacific area.

COLLEGE DELEGATES

An interesting feature of the conference will be the presence and participation on the part of the deans of a number of Commercial Colleges connected with Pacific Universities—this at the request of Japan. It is said that throughout Pacific lands, including the United States, a full million men have taken or are taking foreign trade study courses. These men will guide the future commerce of the Pacific area, and their cooperation is desired by the Commercial Conference.

Viscount Shibuzawa is organising the Japanese delegation, and Hawkling Yen, one of the delegates to the Washington Conference, with H. Y. Moh of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, the Chinese delegation. Manila and even far off Java on the edge of the Pacific expect to send their delegations, and Siberia has already appointed hers.

Alexander Hume Ford, director of the Pan-Pacific Union, has made a tour of the United States and Canada in the interests of the conference and is now meeting in their home cities those who will attend from the Orient. Percy Hunter, one of the Australian founders of the Union, has made a trip from London to Hawaii and back to Australia to interest that country in sending a representative delegation.

TWO-WEEK FETE

The delegates from the Pacific lands will be entertained in Hawaii for two weeks. Here they will be together all of the time and as all of the delegates will speak English, it is expected that many lasting international friendships will be brought about.

The American, Canadian and Latin delegates will sail from San Francisco on October 18.

The chief topics to be discussed at the conference are communication and transportation, development and conservation of natural resources, finance and investments, inter-nation relations in the Pan-Pacific area.

Four cabinet members and many men of highest standing in Pacific lands are preparing papers on these topics and it is expected that more than a hundred of the "key men" of the Pacific will attend the conference to further trade and commerce between Pacific lands.

OUTBREAK PREDICTED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 5.—It is persistently rumored that there may be serious political disturbances in Hunan during the mid-Autumn festival. General Chen Chia-yu, who is allied with General Li Lieh-chun, has advanced as far as Hengchow, which is threatened. If Hangchow falls some of Mr. Tan Yen-kai's supporters may go over to General Chen Chia-yu with the object of declaring the independence of Southern Hunan.

DENIES STRIFE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 5.—General Wu Cheng-sheng denies strained relations with General Chang Tso-lin with whom, he says, he is co-operating with a view to establishing provincial autonomy on the confederated plan. On the contrary General Chang Tso-lin recently informed a foreigner that he is entirely opposed to provincial autonomy and he thinks confederation unworkable and nonsense.

Unfavorable Prospects Revive Cotton Prices

(Reuter's Service)

New York, August 11.—For the first half of the week the cotton trade remained skeptical of crop damage news, and were fortified by very much cooler weather in both Texas and Oklahoma, with the trade apparently indifferent and labor news distinctly pessimistic. After that conditions changed somewhat, and for the first time since the Government report apprehension began to be felt over crop prospects, inspired by the many private reports claiming that rains in the Southwest had been insufficient and too poorly distributed to afford the relief that the entire Texas and Oklahoma crops urgently needed.

Prices at once started to regain some of their lost ground and traders who had either been out of the market altogether since the big decline started, or had been operating on the short side began to buy cotton, in competition with some of the big trade interests. It was recognised that one of the most critical stages of the crop is just ahead of it and that quite naturally numerous damage reports will be circulated in market quarters by operators who are still hopeful of twenty-five cent cotton.

They maintain that had it not been for the lack of outside speculative business and the apathy of the mills incident to the last Government report which was so generally discredited, cotton would have sold at that figure before this. With the labor situation here and the political outlook in Europe so disturbing, however, it is a question if their hopes would have been fully realised. And for the general good of the entire market, speculative and trade, it would probably be better if the crop was at least twelve millions and the price not over 18 cents.

"UNDER 11,000,000"

But unless there is better than the average in the crop outlook this month the estimates under eleven millions would seem to have more justification than those over that amount. A Washington student of market conditions declares: "If a million bales be deducted from the Government estimate for the greater than average area infested by weevil, the lack of average support from fertiliser, and the more than normal deterioration since July 25, the present prospect is for a crop of 10,449,000 bales on the basis of average conditions after this date for other factors." One of the local cotton men who looks for lower prices this autumn says that during September and October there will be something like 5,000,000 bales of new crop cotton ready for sale whereas he believed there will be no more than 2,000,000 wanted. The only buyers for the balance he believes, will be spot merchants who will flood the future markets with hedges.

Regarding the goods situation a Georgia mill reports that it has experienced no large demand but it has been steady and satisfactory throughout the year. The mill does not believe that the trade will place any large orders ahead but will make purchases for their actual requirements from time to time, and thinks that unless we experience a complete crop disaster spinners will buy cotton only for two or three months ahead. The retailers jobbers and manufacturers all got caught two years ago with large stocks on hand at high prices and it is not likely that they will soon forget this experience. Most of the South Carolina mills report having enough cotton to cover their requirements up to the new crop at an average of from 18 to 20 cents. A North Carolina mill believes there will be a better demand in the early fall, particularly should there be a further decline in cotton.

COTTON GOODS

Business in the local cotton goods markets has been very much unsettled by the recent sharp break in the cotton market and on some of the print cloth varieties lower prices have been named. Throughout the country the effects of the rail and coal strikes have been increasingly apparent in the reduced volume of business in these markets and should the strikes result eventually in closing down many industries the effect in buying power would be even more pronounced. These are all conditions that must be faced in arriving at a fair level of cotton prices and to a considerable extent counteract the bullish crop news in the minds of speculative traders.

OUTBREAKS OF FIRE

The attention of the Council has been drawn to the fact that, upon the occasion of a recent fire at a Factory, no report of the outbreak was made by the concerned either to the Fire Brigade or Police, with the result that the fire obtained considerable headway and was extinguished with difficulty.

Factory and Mill Managers and others in charge of industrial establishments are hereby requested to take such steps as will ensure prompt notification to the Fire Brigade or Police of all outbreaks of fires on their premises, however small, in order that adequate steps may be taken to prevent conflagrations.

By order,
N. O. LIDDELL,
Secretary and Commissioner General.

September 6, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each up ⅛d. in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 70⅜ cents and the London-New York cross rate is unchanged at 447½.

Our official rates here today are unchanged from yesterday, and the market while opening steady, eased off during the course of the day and closed on the easy side.

In the early part of the morning business in Sterling was done at 3-5 15-16 for September delivery and 3-6 for forward. Gold Dollars were done at 78⅛ for September and 78¼ for forward delivery.

Speculators however, were strong buyers at these rates and the market eased off until at the close there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-5¾ for September delivery and 3-5 13-16 for forward.

The best sellers of Gold Dollars at the close were offering 78 for September and 78¼ for forward.

There was a good demand for Francs today, some business in T.T. was done in the early part of the morning at 1.005 although at the close there would probably have been buyers at 1.000. Banks were quoting 3-6⅜ for Sterling bills, 79¾ for Gold Dollar bills and 1.035 for Franc bills.

India bought silver again in London yesterday and the market is quoted as steady. The New York market is easy with more sellers than buyers at the official rate.

Miners Entombed In British Shaft

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 5.—Forty miners are entombed in the deepest undersea workings of the Haig pit at Whitehaven 1½ miles from the shaft.

Rescue parties worked under great difficulties owing to falls of the roof. Several rescuers, including the manager, were brought up gassed.

Ten bodies were recovered.

It was at first hoped that the others had escaped through a drift into the Wellington pit, where 136 miners perished 12 years ago, but that hope has been abandoned.

Factions In India At Loggerheads

(Reuter's Service)

Calcutta, Sept. 5.—The authorities' difficulties have been greatly complicated by the recent conflicts between religious factions, which originated in incidents like Mohammedans slaughtering a Hindu sacred bull.

The quarrel came to a head at Telinipara during the Mohammedan festival of Muharram. The rival processions collided at a meeting of Hindus outside a temple. The combatants were armed with brickbats and laths and fought furiously.

The Hindus subsequently looted the Telinipara bazaar, driving out the shrieking inhabitants and ransacked 150 houses. Armed police restored order but one person was killed and 15 injured, while 12 police were also injured slightly.

Several demonstrators were killed and injured and much damage by looting and arson occurred in similar rioting at Multan in the Punjab.

LIVING ON YOUR NERVE.

And Its Dangers.

Everybody has a store of nervous energy. When work or worry without sufficient rest exhausts this store, a condition results that medical men call neurasthenia.

It is commonly met with in those who have had many anxieties, those who have worn themselves out caring for sick relatives, business men who worry over their affairs and do not take proper rest, and women who work beyond their strength.

The signs are clear. Your complexion becomes pale, you imagine unpleasant things, your brain insists on working when you want to go to sleep. Sometimes you are melancholy; nothing pleases you. Constipation is usually present. You worry about yourself and your work and cannot forget your anxieties.

No doctor can cure neurasthenia; you have to do it yourself. First, worry less and don't overtax your strength; then, take Dr. Williams' pink pills, for they supply new blood to feed your worn-out nerves, and so steadily build up your health.

Begin to replenish your store of nervous energy by commencing Dr. Williams' pink pills now. Any dealer can supply; or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co, 86 Szechuen Road, Shanghai $1:50 per bottle, $8.00 for 6 bottles, post free. For men and women too.

Religion And Humanity

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

DEAR Sir: Was it not a brilliant Frenchman who said "All generalisations are false, including this one?" In a letter headed "The Church Universal" "Sophia" makes two statements that will bear scrutiny under the rule so pithily laid down by the brilliant wit.

She says first: "It is a matter of universal knowledge that the fundamental tenets of all the great religions are the same" and continues, "This is apparent to any one who takes the trouble to shear any religion of its ritual and ceremonial, and the dogmas and superstitions that have grown on the original teaching from the time it was first preached on earth by its founder."

I suppose that "Sophia" would admit the actual statements of these founders to be the "fundamental tenets" of the religions they founded. Since I cannot, like one of the world's great Scientists, call up these founders and question them as to what they did teach the only method remaining is to examine their written words —or the literature that from the first has been accepted by the devotees of these religions as their authentic Scripture.

For the sake of convenience I will quote from "The Religions of the World" by David James Burrell whose excellent tabulation from the original sources of a number of the great religions of the world happens to be on my desk at this time. Let us ask four questions of each of them—four questions that most people in their hearts recognise as fundamental.

(1) What is God?
(2) What is Man?
(3) What is Sin?
(4) What is Salvation and how is it attained?

(For the sake of brevity I am choosing three religions only, Buddhism, Mohammedanism, and Christianity).

(1) BUDDHISM

(1) What is God? Buddhism nowhere answers this question clearly. The nearest answer to this question is perhaps contained in the words of Siddartha as he sat under the sacred Bo tree. "The only real and substantial thing in the universe is INTELLECT; there is one great all-embracing intelligence of which the essential and constituent parts are the minds of men; . . . this therefore will I worship, Mind, Intellect, Buddha, my self-conscious self." The Universal Mind is perhaps the God of Buddhism.

(2) What is Man?

Man is the unfortunate creature of physical and spiritual composites. His physical nature is wholly evil and to be absolutely abhorred.

(3) What is Sin?

All existence is evil and hence sinful. The Japanese have a proverb, "The worst thing you can wish a man is that he may live again." This sums up the heart of the Buddhist conception of sin and evil.

(4) What is salvation and how is it attained?

The utmost that can be hoped for is Nirvana, the cessation of conscious existence—the other shore of the ocean of births. Release may be attained only by strictly following the "Noble Eight-fold Path."

II. MOHAMMEDANISM

(1) What is God? In contrast to the vagueness of Buddhism on this question Islam is explicit "God is One God." The creed of the Mohammedan is short and crisp "La Ilah illah Allah; wa Muhammah Rusoul Allah."

(2) What is man?

Man is the impotent creature of Absolute Will. "These to heaven and I care not; These to Hell and I care not" were the words of this God in creating mankind.

(3) What is sin?

Sin is failure to subscribe to the creed stated above. Sense and the purely physical appetites are actually provided for in the heaven of all good Moslems. Here is a FUNDAMENTAL difference from Buddhism which regards all existence as evil.

(4) What is Salvation and how is it attained?

"The joys of Paradise are to be obtained only by the rigid performance of all the observances of faith." Note that it is impossible to "shear" Islam "of its ritual and ceremonial" without changing it into something so wholly different as to excreated by Mohammed himself.

III. CHRISTIANITY

(1) What is God?

An Infinite Spirit who "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." He is represented as "Our father which art in heaven." "God is a spirit and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

(2) What is man?

"And God said, 'Let us make man after our own image and in our own likeness.'" The creature of the Infinite Benevolence in the image of his maker.

(3) What is Sin?

Sin is everywhere represented in the words of Jesus the founder of Christianity as rebellion against the will of God and refusal to obey his commands. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve." It began in the first disobedience of "the first man, Adam."

(4) What is salvation and how is it attained?

Salvation is breaking away from sin and being renewed in the whole man after the image of God. It is peace of conscience. It is a return to the knowledge and communion of God. Salvation is not attained by any observance of "law works." It is the acceptance of God's plan and acknowledgment of the futility of man's own efforts to attain perfection (Here note the absolute contrast to Buddhism and to Islam which depend (1) on observation of the strict law of the "eight fold path" and (2) Subscription to the "Kalima.")

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Good works turning from evil and cleaving to good follow and attest salvation but in no way condition this salvation.

There is much loose thinking abroad and many generalisations on this subject. May we not plead for closer examination of (1) Sources, as given in the Holy Books of these religions, Tripitaka, Koran, Bible; and especially (2) Fruits as seen in the religions as they survive today, above all in the lives of their devotees.

"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL KNOW THEM."

Enclosing my card, I remain.
Yours sincerely,

A PROFESSOR OF CHRISTIANITY.

Kuling, China, Aug. 30, 1922.

The Church Universal

Editor: THE CHINA PRESS.

Dear Sir.—Mr. G. L.'s letter in reply to mine is not very convincing either to the intellect or to the spirit. "Christianity is the work of God. All other religions are the work of men." That is a bold statement and is a presumption of profound knowledge as to the religions of the world and their sources of inspiration. Pray, who told him all this? Christ? I doubt it. The Apostles? They were uneducated men and presumably knew nothing of the philosophy of Buddha or of Krishna or of Zoroaster or of the older Egyptian and Chaldean religions.

Some thinkers put the age of humanity back to eighteen millions of years. We may be disposed to take this with a great deal of reserve. But Science has found evidence in the valley of the Nile pointing to the existence of a humanity there, two hundred thousand years ago. Taking this modest figure, I would like to ask, What did humanity do without a Christ for two hundred thousand years? Was it wallowing in the slime of ignorance and sin for all that length of time without any attempt on the part of God to send it a message of His Truth? That would be a strange view of an all-merciful Creator. Christ came forth because the world needed him. Can we conceive that it did not need any spiritual message during the ages preceding Christ? Or that they did need it but the all-merciful Father threw them stones instead? The reign of the first King Menes of Egypt began about 4770 B.C. Babylonian civilisation is pushed back to 10,000 years B.C. The Hindus claim a chronology which, if fantastic, is still conceded to be older than the modest 6,000 years allowed them by the Bible. China, also, is not an infant, to say the least. Must we believe that all these had no message from above, that Egypt and Babylon had no divine teachers, that India had no divine saviors, that China had to wait till the present age to have Divine Truth preached to it for the first time?

Mr. G. L. observes a discreet silence with regard to my statement that the religions of the world are fundamentally alike in their teachings. This fundamental similarity is well established. How does G. L. explain it? How does it come about that Christ, who was the only divine messenger, founded an Institution that is fundamentally identical with the systems founded by mere men? How is it that we find in the Bhagavad Gita teachings as to God and Man as lofty as, if not loftier than, those accredited to Christ? How is it that we find there the same teachings as to the Infinity of God and the Immortality of Man, the same injunctions as to Love and Service, to mention only a few fundamentals? And that applies as well to all the other scriptures of the world.

To think of Christ as the only Divine Teacher is narrow-minded and bigoted. It belittles the greatness and wisdom of God and takes away from the beauty of His message. To see God's Truth going out to all men in all climes, in all times, is to see something of the importance of the message; to see the same Truth expressed in a dozen different ways, contained in different parables and allegories, and proclaimed by different personalities, is to appreciate something of the grandeur of that Truth which always has been One and always will be One. I am, etc.

MR. "SOPHIA."

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Man Of The Hour In Turkey

NOTE: In a recent issue of The Fortnightly Review, Mr. Chair Price tells the story of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the man of the hour in Turkey and throughout Asia Minor, the man who was responsible for the National Pact, the man who has upset the Treaty of Sevres and who now as the crowning accomplishment of a wholly astonishing career, has crushed the Greek army and is driving it in utter rout from his Fatherland. Here's the story:

Forty years ago, when Abdul Hamid II. was Sultan in Grand Constantinople and the Crescent and Star still floated over Salonica, an underling in the Salonica Customs office died, leaving his widow with a small daughter and an infant son on her hands. The daughter in time grew up and married, as is the way of Turkish daughters. The son was intended by his mother for the mosque school and the career of a hoja, as is the way of Turkish mothers, but he became fascinated by the uniforms of the army officers whom he saw about the streets, as is the way of Turkish sons. In time he succeeded in passing the examinations for the military preparatory school at Salonica, where his mathematics teacher became so fond of him that he left off calling him by his given name of Mustapha and dubbed him Kemal, a Turkish name meaning rightness. Today the name by which his mathematics teacher once knew him as a soft boy at Salonica has become the name by which the world knows him as a man of iron at the mud town of Angora in Asia Minor. Today Abdul Hamid, Enver Pasha and Damad Ferid Pasha, one after the other, have dropped out of the story, although for the first twenty-eight years of Mustapha Kemal Pasha's life—he is forty-one today—Abdul Hamid looms above him like a great black djinn above a wanderer on a lonely horizon.

Abdul Hamid was an apostle of absolutism. He was a great Eastern absolutist in a day when the West was abandoning absolutism. He maintained his absolute rule by such a system of espionage that the life and liberty of no Ottoman subject were safe who was remotely suspected of having heard of the French Revolution, a system of espionage which could not keep Western governmental ideas out of the capital, but which could, and did, keep them underground. In an Eastern population such as Abdul Hamid's—in which a great fighting tradition sucks the best brains of the country into the army—the network of espionage which radiated from Yildiz Kiosk had the effect of giving the army a sort of dual existence. On the surface it continued to be a splendid military organism, the trustee of the great military tradition of the Ottoman clan. But beneath the surface it was a ferment of forbidden political ideas, and the example of Nihilism in Russia, which did much to spread the secret society craze, found no more fertile element to work upon than the yeasty mentality of the War Academy and the Military College of Medicine in Constantinople. But if a secret society calling itself the Society of Liberty was being formed among the students at the War Academy, of a similar society calling itself the Society of Progress was being formed among the students at the Military College of Medicine, both were off-stage movements. It was Abdul Hamid, and Abdul Hamid alone, on whom the footlights shone.

The military preparatory school at Salonica, the officers' school at Monostir, and the War Academy at Constantinople finally graduated Kemal, a headstrong youth of twenty-two into the army with the rank of lieutenant. He had hardly reached the War Academy from Monastir before his adolescent mind became tainted by the political ferment with which the great school was secretly permeated. A gony of Kemal Bey's forbidden play Watan (The Fatherland) fell into his hands. Abdul Hamid had caused every known copy of the play to be confiscated and burned. He had forced its author, despite his very high place in modern Turkish literature, to flee to England, where he spent the rest of his days in exile. He had driven out of the capital every Ottoman subject whom his spies suspected of having read Watan. But Watan gave the young Kemal his first taste of Western ideas of government, and made him secretly a bitter opponent of Abdul Hamid, which, at the time, was a rather ridiculous thing to be.

Kemal had no sooner been graduated into the army than he engaged a small apartment in the Stamboul section of Constantinople to serve as the headquarters of the secret Society of Liberty, permitting an acquaintance whom he trusted, and who represented himself as being penniless, to sleep in the apartment at night. As a result Kemal was arrested, taken to Yildiz Kiosk to be questioned, and, after three months' confinement in a cell at the Ministry of Police, was exiled to a cavalry regiment in Damascus. Fresh from the War Academy, fired with the spirit of revolution, and schooled in the technique of revolution, he spent his time here in organising local branches of the Society of Liberty until he became convinced that work in Syria was a mistake, and that the inevitable scene of Turkish revolution would be Turkey-in-Europe. Accordingly he escaped to Alexandria, and finally succeeded in reaching Salonica via the Piraeus, for Salonica was already becoming the Mecca of Turkish revolution.

Here he worked in hiding for four months before Constantinople discovered his presence and made it necessary for him to flee to Akaba, where a convenient outbreak of trouble gave him an alibi which served to smooth down the ruffled feelings of Constantinople. He stayed in Syria until a change of War Ministers in Constantinople made it possible for him to apply for, and secure, a transfer to the Third Army's Staff at Salonica. Back in Salonica again, he merged the Society of Liberty into the Society of Progress, which now took the name of the Committee of Union and Progress, and whose forces were now strongly entrenched in Salonica, Monastir and Uskub. And, almost at once, there occurred a terrific turn in European politics from which the Near East will not recover for a century to come.

Great Britain, which had been supporting Abdul Hamid against Russia, dropped the Sultan and joined hands with the Tsar in the Anglo-Russian Treaty of 1907, a treaty which frightened the Young Turks into the abortive revolution of 1908, with its frantic but futile bid for British support. In that revolution, in which Kemal participated on the staff of Mahmoud Shevket Pasha, commander of the Third Army, Abdul Hamid lost his absolutist regime, and in the attempted counter-revolution of 1909 Abdul Hamid was dragged down from the height of Yildiz Kiosk to the depths of a Salonica dungeon. But without British support the end of the old Empire was now only a matter of time. The revolution of 1908 succeeded only to fail. The installation of the Committee of Union and Progress in Grand Constantinople proved to be a mere coup d'etat, and at the ensuing C. U. P. congress at Salonica Kemal broke with Enver Pasha in a violent personal quarrel which remains to this day. The rule of Abdul Hamid had been succeeded by the rule of Enver and his colleagues, and Kemal withdrew from politics in bitter disillusionment.

During the ensuing years, when the Empire was crumbling to its end, Kemal's life was that of the Turkish army officer. Enver exiled him to Tripoli, Izzet Pasha returned him to Salonica, Mahmoud Shevket took him to Albania, and Enver sent him back to Tripoli to command native irregulars during the war with Italy. Without British support the crash of the old Empire had begun. During the first Balkan war Kemal was permitted to twiddle his thumbs on the Dardanelles, but it was he who was called on to recapture Adrianople when the opportunity offered. When Enver joined Germany in 1914 in a last desperate gamble for the life of the Empire, Kemal threw up his post of military attache at Sofia and returned to Constantinople, still a young man, but a man with a brilliant past, a hatred of Enver which was both personal and political, and a degree of personal prestige which made it no longer possible to disregard him.

Kemal was convinced from the first that the Empire was in no condition to enter the war, but Enver gave him the Nineteenth Division and dispatched him to the Dardanelles, possibly hoping that a British bullet might put an end to him. Here Kemal's high military abilities and the unvarying luck which had become proverbial of him eventually gave him command of the entire Turco-German force on the peninsula, and his success in throwing back the British before Anaforta is the most brilliant achievement of his military career. It made him a great hero in Germany at once, but it was not until its story was told in the C. U. P. year-book for 1917 that Enver inadvertently permitted it to leak out in Constantinople; then, two years later, the Turkish papers began printing the story of Anaforta, and Enver caused the entire issue of the year-book to be confiscated and destroyed. By that time it had become politically dangerous to mention Kemal's name in the capital.

Alarmed at his popularity, Simonvon Sanders secured Kemal's transfer to the Russian front as soon as the British had evacuated the Dardanelles. On the Russian front Kemal was appointed major-general and given the Sixteenth Army, but he came into speedy conflict with Falkenhayn over the project to recapture Bagdad from the British. Throwing up his command in protest, Kemal returned to Aleppo, and on September 30, 1917, dispatched to Enver a lengthy statement of his position. In this remarkable statement, written at a moment when the entire country was expecting a German victory, Kemal declared that the corruption of the Government at Constantinople, the disruption of the economic life, and the constant drainage of the country's gold away to Germany, could have but one end. Great Britain and France could not be divided and they could not be beaten. Great Britain would conquer Palestine, would set up a Christian Government under its own control with which to hold the Suez Canal, the Red Sea and Egypt, and would isolate Turkey from the rest of Islam—"a sound war policy made possible by our frivolous entry into the war against England, a policy whose success means irreparable loss for us, and whose failure means German domination for us. . . . Falkenhayn has said repeatedly to anyone who will listen to him that he is a German, and is naturally interested first in Germany. If he can hold Palestine he will place himself before the world and before our country as one of the great victors of the war. We shall then lose our own country, and to this end Falkenhayn will sacrifice every ounce of gold and every soldier he can squeeze out of us."

Enver's reply to this warning was to give Falkenhayn command on the Palestine front and to exile Kemal to Germany in the suite of the Crown Prince (now the Sultan). Kemal spent a year touring Germany and Austria-Hungary in disgrace before the soundness of his warning had become apparent beyond further cavil. Then Enver recalled him and gave him the Yilderim Group (Fourth, Seventh and Eighth Armies) on the Palestine front. But it was too late. Kemal reached his post just as Allenby's great break-through brought the Empire crashing down to its end. Kemal halted his retreat in Adana, where a cipher telegram from Constantinople told him that Raouf Bey was on his way to Murdos to sign an armistice with the British. It was the end of the world for Kemal.

He returned to the capital to find that Grand Constantinople had fallen into such disorder as can scarcely be imagined. The Committee of Union and Progress had fled, and the feeble reactionary Liberal Entente Party, the old opposition party, was lifting Damad Ferid Pasha into succession to Talaat and Enver. The Parliament had been prorogued, and the capital was drifting without a leader into the most complete confusion. British troops were in occupation of the Pera and Galata sections of Constantinople, French troops were holding the Stamboul section, Italian troops were on the Asiatic shore, and men-of-war of all three Allies were anchored in the Bosphorus, the British contingent leading with a number of battleships which had been hurried down from the demobilised Grand Fleet in the North Sea. French troops held the railways of Turkey-in-Europe, and British troops not only held the railways of Asia Minor, but formed an iron ring around the remnant of the old Empire, occupying Trans-Caucasia, Persia, Mesopotamia, Kurdistan, Syria and a number of ports on the Mediterranean and Black Sea shores of Asia Minor. Under the terms of the Mudros armistice the Turkish navy had been surrendered and interned at Constantinople, and the Turkish armies were being rapidly disarmed and demobilised. And if there had been any hope that the disappearance of Russia from the Anglo-Russian alliance would make possible the recovery of that understanding with Great Britain which Abdul Hamid had lost with such disastrous effect in 1907, it was speedily dissipated by the Note which the Oecumenical Patriarchate at Phanar dispatched to the Porte on March 9, 1919, severing their relations. It had then become apparent that Venizelos and political Hellenism had succeeded to the place in the old Anglo-Russian alliance which Russia had vacated. Backed by the overwhelming strength of the victorious British arms, the new Anglo-Hellenist rapprochement was even more dangerous to the disarmed remnant of Turkey than the old Anglo-Russian alliance had been to the late Empire, and, with the Allies in occupation of Constantinople itself, Kemal knew that it was useless to attempt to gather the broken and chaotic capital against the new doom which was ready to burst upon it. Accordingly he left Constantinople for Asia Minor to escape Allied surveillance for a sufficient period of time to enable him to form a new political party which, working under the terms of the Mudros armistice, should compel Damad Ferid to re-assemble Parliament and enable the country to consider its future. Damad Ferid soon realised that his War

Minister had been guilty of a gross blunder in giving Kemal a free hand in Asia Minor, and he quickly telegraphed Kemal to return to the capital. Kemal ignored the telegram, and Ferid dismissed him from the army, a length to which Enver had never dared go. There now began a bitter factional fight between Ferid and Kemal, Ferid's provincial officials in Asia Minor arresting Kemal's agents and deporting them to Constantinople, while Kemal's agents began arresting Ferid's officials and setting up Kemalist provincial administrations in their places. In its blackest moment Turkey had split.

But the Greek occupation of Smyrna on May 15, 1919, showed what might be expected of the new Anglo-Hellenist rapprochement, and sent whole provinces in Asia Minor scurrying to Kemal. Its effect was that Ferid lost Asia Minor to Kemal, although for two years he attempted to regain a foothold beyond the Bosphorus, and in the Delibash revolution of October, 1920, he did succeed in regaining Konia. Three days afterwards, however, Rafet Pasha reinstated the Kemalist administration, but Ferid's agents continued to move back and forth under the coasts of Asia Minor with their eyes on Konia until last summer, when Kemalist agents boarded the Khedivial liner Palatina at Adalia discovered Topal Osman and four confederates hidden in a cargo hold, and shot them down. That incident effectively put an end to Ferid's attempts to re-enter Asia Minor. Kemal's hold on Asia Minor today is unquestionable.

The Greek occupation of Smyrna led Kemal to tear up the Mudros armistice, but he continued to direct his efforts toward the building up of a Nationalist majority in the Parliament at Constantinople. He now moved his headquarters to Angora, a town of mud and malaria which happened to be within easy communication of Constantinople both by rail and wire. Here a group of twelve leaders of his now powerful Nationalist Party drew up the National Pact and dispatched it to Ferid's Parliament in Constantinople, which adopted it on January 28, 1920, "declaring the principles therein announced to be the limit of sacrifice to which the Ottoman Parliament can consent to go in order to assure itself a just and lasting peace." The British military command in Constantinople now suppressed the Parliament by arresting and deporting to Malta as many of its Nationalist deputies as could be found. But the long effort which Kemal had made to build up a Nationalist majority in the Parliament did not come to naught. The arrival of scores of Nationalists who had fled from Constantinople on the famous night of March 16 now made it possible for Kemal to set up a solidly Nationalist Parliament at Angora. The Grand National Assembly was convened at Angora on April 23 for the sole purpose of executing the National Pact, and in the remnant of the great Empire over which Abdul Hamid had once wielded his absolute rule Field-Marshal Mustapha Kemal Pasha had finally become master.

Thereafter Ferid lasted long enough at Constantinople to see the Sevres Treaty signed at Paris on August 11, but when it became apparent that he would be unable to ratify it, he was finally dropped from office. The Sevres Treaty was the handiwork of Anglo-Hellenism. Briefly it proposed to close the Greek pincers about Constantinople, to cut it off from Asia Minor with a garrison to 700 men, and to place what remained of Turkey in Asia Minor under the permanent military, financial and economic control of Great Britain, France and Italy. Had it been ratified it would have put an end not only to the Ottoman Empire but to Turkey itself, and the possibility of securing its ratification was not abandoned without a struggle. The National Assembly had scraped together sufficient Turkish forces to maintain touch with the Greeks along a front which followed the line of the Bagdad Railway from Eski-Shehr to Afiun-Karahissar, but with its Navy taken over by the British under the terms of the armistice it was unable to contest the Greek command of its coasts, and the Greek rear in Europe was of course quite out of the question. Bottled up in Asia Minor, the Assembly's only military contact with the Greeks was the frontal contact of the line from Eski-Shehr to Afiun. With a British military mission now attached to the Greek high command, the Greeks encircled the left flank of the makeshift Turkish forces in front of Afiun, and sent them pell-mell into a disastrous retreat. Some seventy-five miles to the rear and only forty miles in front or Angora itself, they reformed on a north-and-south line along the Sakaria River, where Mustapha Kemal Pasha himself took command. Here the Greeks sought again to encircle their left, but Kemal pulled down his forces to meet them. Crossing the Sakaria south of the Turkish lines, the Greeks drove some fifty miles due east in a vain attempt to find the Turkish left. With the Turkish positions now shifted to an east-and-west line at a distance of some fifty miles southwest of Angora, the Greeks hammered away for twenty-one days in an effort to break through—a struggle which some day will be appreciated as one of the world's historic battles. In Kemal's career it was almost as brilliant an episode as his victory before Anaforta in 1915.

In that engagement Anglo-Hellenism and its handiwork, the Sevres Treaty, alike collapsed. The Near East Conference at Paris last March was the result, a conference at which Kemal was represented by the Assembly's Foreign Secretary, Youssouf Kemal Bey. At that Conference Great Britain, France and Italy made "suggestions" to Athens, Constantinople and Angora respecting a Greco-Turkish armistice pending the assemblage of a peace conference at "a town to be decided upon." The Grand National Assembly's reply was a demand for "integral acceptance" of its National Pact and evacuation of Asia Minor by the Greeks before the peace conference began, coupled with a suggestion of Ismid town, at the head of the gulf of that name on the Sea of Marmora, as a suitable scene for the conference. Ismid was suggested in order to make it possible for Kemal himself to attend behind the scenes when the Angora delegates entered the conference.

Both before and since the Genoa Conference Kemal's chief anxiety is to recover, on that new basis of equality which is laid down in the National Pact, the understanding with England which Abdul Hamid lost in 1907.

The now defunct Sevres Treaty was the logical result of a sequence of leadership in Turkey which descended from Abdul Hamid to Enver to Damad Ferid. The ruin of Turkey today—whether it be just or unjust is irrelevant here—was accomplished under their leadership and not under Kemal's. History has not yet written its verdict on Kemal. Whether his revolution of 1920 will succeed in effectively introducing into Turkey those Russian ideas of Government which Abdul Hamid once fought with all the espionage at his command, whether his revolution will succeed where Enver's revolution of 1908 failed, remains to be seen. All that one can say today is that Kemal has become the leader not only of his own country but of all those Sunni Moslem countries between Constantinople and Kabul which until 1917 felt the full weight of the Anglo-Russian Treaty of 1907.

I never think of Kemal without recalling him as I saw and talked with him last in a small room off the corridor of the Assembly building at Angora—a man with a face of iron beneath a great iron-grey kalpak. In an English shooting suit of tweed with a grey soft collar and a grey tie, he sat back of his desk with the limp folds of a tall green banner inscribed with Turkish letters of gold in the corner behind him. His eyes were hard and blue, his mouth was hard and thin-lipped, and the flash of much gold in his lower teeth gave sparkle to the hard incisiveness of his manner as he talked. He was a man of iron in a situation which would break any man of less durable metal.

Amid the hatreds and prejudices which make the Near East an impenetrable jungle for most of us, Near Eastern leaders are apt to see things as they desire to see them, but to me Kemal is a man who sees things as they are. To me he is one of the hardest and soberest leaders in the world today.

Stars And Fireballs

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

"If the stars are moving at such tremendous speed, and it takes light in some cases several years to reach us from them, why do they not appear as streaks instead of retaining their original shapes? —A. J. C., Hongkong."

Your question contains its own answer in the statement about the time required for light to reach us from the stars. The length of that time is a measure of the distance of the stars, and the greatness of their distance when compared with the speed of their motion prevents their images from being drawn out into apparent streaks of light, as are the images of meteors shooting through the atmosphere.

When a meteor rushes across the sky its speed is usually many miles per second, while its distance is at most only a few times greater than the space that it traverses in a single second and may even be less than that space.

Accordingly it moves over an arc of many degrees in so brief a period that the impression it makes upon the eye when in any given position has not time to fade from the retina before the object has advanced a considerable distance farther on. The result is that, through the phenomenon of "persistence of vision" (upon which the entire principle of the motion picture depends), the eye sees the moving meteor apparently drawn out into a luminous streak.

But no such appearance would be presented if the meteor were so far away compared with its speed of motion that the arc traversed by it in a second was imperceptibly small. In that case the eye would see the meteor as it sees a slowly thrown ball, i.e. as a separate object moving continuously in the same direction, but not presenting any apparent elongation of its form.

Now, this is the case of the stars. Some of them have "proper motions" across our line of sight amounting to anywhere from a dozen up to one or two hundred miles per second, and yet they appear to the telescope as well as to the naked eye as small, round disks of light. The explanation is that in the brief period of time concerned in the phenomenon of persistence of vision their motion does not carry them over a perceptible arc.

Suppose that the star is moving 200 miles per second, while its distance is so great that its light-waves take 200 years to come to the earth. Then that star is about twelve hundred millions of millions of miles away, counting a light-year as in round numbers six millions of millions of miles. But, at that distance, its cross-motion of 200 miles per second would not produce in a second of time a change of place amounting to the thirty-millionth of a second arc.

In an entire year the star's place, as seen from the earth, would change only one second of arc, or not much more than one 2,000th of the apparent diameter of the moon. In order to appear as a luminous streak darting across the heavens it would have to move many billions, instead of only a couple of hundred, miles per second.

The principle underlying this is plainly shown in the apparent movements of terrestrial bodies viewed from different distances. If you stand besides a race course as the racers pass you within a few feet their images may be said to be drawn out into streaks—they certainly would look like streaks of fire if they were luminous. But when, keeping the same speed, they pass around the distant opposite side of the course, there is no such appearance of elongation in the line of motion. So, too, a railroad train, going forty miles an hour, shoots "like a streak" past the observer standing beside the track but when it has wound its way around to the other side of a valley several miles away it seems to be merely crawling along the base of a hill there.

Even the immense velocity of light—186,320 miles per second—would appear slow if a body endower with that velocity were viewed at right-angles to its direction of motion from the distance of the stars. In a whole year such a body would change its place by a linear distance less than the aparent diameter of the moon.

A curious relation of time to space is revealed when an instantaneous photograph is made of a swiftly moving body like a cannon ball. The eye either does not perceive the flying ball at all, or is simply impressed with a sense of something passing in a streak. But an extremely short photographic exposure of the ball shows it plainly as if standing still.

This simply means that during the very brief time that the rested on the sensitive plate its angular change of place was too slight to produce a noticeable distortion of the image. Time being vastly magnified space sank into relative insignificance.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

British Policy In India To Continue

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, Sept. 5.—The Viceroy, at the opening session of the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, emphatically reiterated that there would not be any change in the policy of the Imperial Government towards India. Any doubt on this point must surely have been dispelled by the statement the Premier authorised him to make with reference to the former's recent speech in the House of Commons.

He declared that certain events in India during the past 18 months and malign influences working to make the reforms a failure had affected the British Parliament and people. Earl Reading appealed to both Legislatures to continue to use their influence to guide the masses in the right direction.

British Unionists To Own 'Daily Herald'

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 5.—The Trade Union Congress at Southport has resolved to impose on its officials an age limit of 70. This means the retirement of their Secretary, Mr. Bowerman.

The mover of the resolution, amid shouts of "You mean Bowerman", complained of the lack of initiative of the Trade Union movement, which wanted men of vitality.

The Congress by 4,000,000 votes against 900,000 decided to take over the Daily Herald. The members affiliation fee will be increased three pence for that purpose.

A remarkable fall in membership from 6,416,000 to 5,127,000 (for the past twelve months) was reported. It was attributed mainly to unemployment and industrial conflicts.

Permanent Mandates Commission Report Is Adopted

(French Wireless through Reuter's)

Paris, Sept. 5.—A telegram received at Geneva announces that Bolivia is sending a representative to the League of Nations Assembly.

Attempts have failed to prevail upon Peru to renounce her decision to withdraw from the Assembly as a result of the election of Mr. Edwards (Chile) as President.

The Austrian Chancellor is continuing negotiations at Geneva and will be heard by the Council today.

Havas learns that in the course of recent conversations M. Bourgeois and Earl Balfour reached almost complete agreement on the necessity for an urgent remedy for the Austrian situation.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 5.—The Council of the League of Nations has adopted the report of the Permanent Mandates Commission and has instructed the President to convey the wishes of the Commission to the mandatories, requesting their favorable consideration.

The Commission's observations relate chiefly to the presence in the Pacific islands of laborers from overseas, especially from China, whose introduction might present social difficulties, and also to the Australian administration of Nauru.

The Commission also desires further information in relation to land tenure, preferential tariffs, alcoholic restrictions, etc.

The Marquis Imperiali, Reporter of the Commission, remarked that the Council would read with interest details of the administration of Nauru and would like later to hear the exact status of the island.

Earl Balfour significantly emphasised that the Council, while approving the report of the Commission, in no way meant to make the observations of the Commission its own.

Marquis Imperiali, replying, said that the report did not criticise the administration of the mandatories but simply transmitted observations to the interested Governments who were absolutely free to conform with them or not.
